Dear Scott,

Now that the holidays have ended, it feels like we're back to the same old grind. Cold weather, heads down, looking for any ray of sunshine to brighten up the first quarter.

For me, it's not as bad. Every day of the week I get to go to the beautiful offices that BEAR Construction created for my company. You may not know too much about the work, given the fact that we were a small job for you (only 7,500 sq.ft.). But, it was a herculean task that was masterfully executed by Bill Robinson, Katelyn Petraitis and Nick Minella and literally every sub you brought in. They did a turn-key job in less than three weeks. Closer to two, in fact.

It was a unique situation in that LKH&S owned the build-out for a sub-leased space. My partners and I know NOTHING about office space renovation. The anxiety we had was almost immediately assuaged by your fine team. They demonstrated every aspect of professionalism, knowledge, teamwork, communication and superb client service. And, they even made it fun. It was truly a pleasure to work with them.

I do not know when we might be need a construction company again, but if we did I feel that it's one phone call. Please consider me and LKH&S a testament to your great work and a testimonial for anyone who is interested in learning what it's like to work with BEAR Construction.

Very Sincerely,

P.S. Though we have never met, please pass along my sentiments to the Wienold family.
